Enroll in the Certified Lay Pastoral Assistant (CLPA) Program today.

The Pacific Institute of Christian Ministry (PICM) provides education to the laity that will enable them to be prepared and to serve in ministry. The institute was established to meet the following objectives and needs in the growing Seventh-day Adventist churches:

1. To help local church members discover and use their spiritual gifts effectively
2. To provide professional training in ministry for all church members
3. To prepare gifted members to disciple others in the local church
4. To encourage more lay leaders to work together with pastors in fulfilling the Great Commission

5. To adapt the concept: Every pastor an equipper, and every member a minister

Check out five options of training:

- Onsite – Held at the Local Conferences of the Pacific Union Conference
- Online – Classes through the Internet
- Distance Education – Study in the comfort of your home through correspondence
- Extension School – Classes in other divisions, unions, and conferences
- Webinars – Classes through the internet and telephone
